PITTSTOWN, N.J. (WAAY) - A chance to see a bear cub sleep, eat and just be cute.

Mike the bear cub

According to nj.com, someone took two bear cubs, nicknamed Mike and Ike, to Woodlands Wildlife Refuge three weeks ago, after an incident at a state park.

The website says a hunter shot their mother in self defense. Ike died for an unknown reason, but Mike is doing well.

The refuge hopes people will check in with Mike to see how he develops.

You can see him 24 hours a day here.

The refuge says don't be alarmed if he's not there. He can move out or camera range or tuck under a sheet. Workers also remove him for feedings.
